Watson, all-comers' aggregate shooter, and Captain Charles Scottish, is second in each of these events. Q.M.S. Evans and R. R. Raffel, rifle association, finished in the above order.

Tapley, who was the only one in the individual shoot carried out today, in the Dawson main match, and the Canadian rifle association scored a 47. In the same class, Captain J. C. D. Macdonald, Vancouver, Regt., and Captain G. E. Scott, Canadian Guards, ladies of Canada, First and Second regiments, were the winners in that order, but the winner in the last class, the winner in the second and the third, was the same.

In the Macdonald "Brier" No. 2, Captain Tapley, who was the only one in the club, Victoria, who had won the first prize in the 1928 Brier, was the winner.

Heals Range, July 5.—After a long absence from the range, Captain Tapley for the B.C.R.A. came along.

In the competition between the two clubs, the Heals range had beaten the Victoria, with the Garrison, and the Canadian Guards.

Conditions remain very favorable as to the weather, and the weather is the most successful in years, in respect to the amount of rain.

The annual meeting of the B.C. R.A. was held at Victoria on June 29. The last year's activities were reviewed and the new officers were elected.

The association was sound to a large extent, and the new officers were submitted by Major P. H. M. Walker, president.

NO ELECTION EXPECTED BY MR. PLUNKETT

Member for Victoria Bevers Ottawa Government Will Hold Another Regular Session Before Appeal

MR. KING FOLLOWS WAITING POLICY

City Representative Reviews Progress of Public Business at Late Session of House

"I do not think Mr. MacKenzie has the courage to go to the people with a policy not supported by the majority of the people. His probability is that there will be a general election before the election is called," said Mr. King, who arrived home yesterday from a vacation in the United States.

PRINCIPAL POLICIES

"In regard to the fiscal policies of the government, the session has closed and while our friends in the United States of America have seen the best of their own people, we have seen the best of ours. The government, or Prime Minister, as the late future policy, is one of small and slow policy, and I am not in favor of that. I am in favor of a policy as a nation, able to conduct our affairs in a more rapid manner than in our own home, only time and money will tell."

The minister said, at Delane's, he had a talk with Mr. MacKenzie, who was in the House of Commons at Ottawa.

He said the former government had been asked to give up its policy of non-interference in the awarding of contracts under this government.

In order to estimate this aspect of the situation, Mr. MacKenzie had decided that $100,000 would be required for the practice which will be called for even on small jobs, such as repairing roofs, and getting contractors in to do the work.

He said this practice which was followed by the former government had led him to believe that the government had been alighted that favoritism was being practiced in awarding of the contracts under this government.

The minister said, in order to estimate this aspect of the situation, Mr. MacKenzie had decided that $100,000 would be required for the practice which will be called for even on small jobs, such as repairing roofs, and getting contractors in to do the work.

policy will become effective for the benefit of all our citizens throughout the country.

"The task is that of the Canadian Government in carrying out the new tariff proposals. Mr. Mackenzie King's session will be a special one, and it may be that a special session will be called to deal with certain tax issues. On the other hand, Mr. Plunkett has said that the effect of the new tariff will be to affect Canada's economic future and to increase the strength of the dollar. In the third place, the Canadian Government has been given a mandate of 'watchful waiting' which may mean another election.

Mr. James Plunkett, February 6 to follow by an election after, or even before, the new tariff is introduced.

Mr. Plunkett referred to the outcome of the general election as being the result of the concluding days of the campaign.

When they attempted to drive the SERVICE STOPPED

After receiving reports of disturbances, Mr. Plunkett ordered the Public Service Commission to take steps to prevent strikes for the time being, and instructed the heads of departments to call in their street gatherers together than those who had been working in their own yards.

The strike was broken up without any further action, after a few hours.

The police reported approximately 200 arrests.

LEARNERS REPRESENTATIVE

The discussions at the Assembly of the League of Nations in the British Isles have not failed to gain added strength by the exceptionally frank character of the British delegation. Robert Cecil is one of the delegates. As the author of the Covenant of the League and one of the principal promoters of its formation, the right to be a British representative.

The Labor Government, however, is mainly to the Labor viewpoint only, and therefore cannot represent British thought as a whole.

Out of 22,000,000 persons who went to the polls at the recent British election over 14,000,000 voted for the Labor party.

The Labor Government in Britain would have made a decided impression if it had appeared before the League, which would have been thoroughly representative of the British attitude.

By right of his position as Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald is the spokesman of the Government, just as Mr. Arthur Henderson is Foreign Secretary, is by virtue of his office, a member of the Cabinet.

He and his colleagues will not command any particular public attention, but they will speak with weight.

Apart from the heads of Governments and those in charge of their foreign policy, the assembly should be composed of imperial representatives, men who are statesmen, not party leaders.

The deliberations of the League will never command the respect they ought to have. No one can say that the League has been well represented by the forthcoming Assembly through the personnel named by Mr. Ramsay MacDonald.

BRITAIN AND SOVIET RUSSIA

At a time when the British Labor Party is discussing the resumption of diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia, the question of whether war is being pursued under Bolshevik auspices to bring about a revolution in India and elsewhere has been raised again.

It is to be hoped that the Indian Government, to help curb the movement and to bring it to a standstill, will command any particular public attention, but they will speak with weight.

Apart from the heads of Governments and those in charge of their foreign policy, the assembly should be composed of imperial representatives, men who are statesmen, not party leaders.

The deliberations of the League will never command the respect they ought to have. No one can say that the League has been well represented by the forthcoming Assembly through the personnel named by Mr. Ramsay MacDonald.

series of seafarers, often the scions of several families, scattered on the American continent since the early days of its settlement in carrying freight and passengers by land or water, carts, sleds, sailing vessels, steamboats in all stages and styles and periods of development. This, however, is not the whole story. There is also to be obtained a complete illustrative exposition, in concrete form, of what has been achieved in agriculture, in mining, in the construction of houses, furniture, lighting, heating, dress, amusements in trading, in the customs, in the practice of church and law court, all phases, indeed, of the life of the people.

This is an ambitious undertaking, but of course Mr. Ford does not do things by halves. His numerous publications, including his history of the reconstruction of the past few hundred years of American life, an illustrated account of steam in America, and his book on the automobile, are all excellent reading.
